Tackett and Allison win primaries

John Pothast
Staff Writer

The Student Association primaries, held Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, picked John Tackett and Tim Allison as the final two candidates for SA president.

The field started out with four candidates, which was then narrowed down to just two by the 550 students who voted during the primaries.

Scott Skibness and Brent Wessels, who were the other two candidates, are now out of the running for the presidential position.

Tackett, a senior accounting major, and Allison, a junior business and political science major, will battle it out for the presidency next week.

On Tuesday, April 5, UMD students will elect either Tackett or Allison to be their new president for the 1988-89 school year.

The current SA president, Steve Hughes, is graduating this spring and is therefore not running for another term.

With the election less than one week away, the two candidates are already thinking about the issues facing them in the future.

Both Tackett and Allison hope to improve the present financial aid situation by streamlining the process.

The two candidates also agree that there is a problem with housing on campus. "Housing should be a landlord, not a parent," Allison said. Both have plans to deal with current problems confronting students and housing.

Other issues concerning Tackett are parking spaces around campus, food prices and apathy on the part of the students.

"I want to look into the possibility of giving the students more variety in food choice by perhaps bringing a McDonalds or Burger King to the campus," Tackett said.

"I also want to get students more involved with the campus. The students just are not involved enough," Tackett said.

Allison is also concerned about student involvement in campus activities.

"There is a big problem with SA's visibility on campus. Students simply don't know about us [Student Association] or what we do. I want to change that image and make SA more available and visible to the students," Allison said.

lison said.

"I also want to open the lines of communication up between all student organizations on campus," Allison said.

Allison said he also plans to push for the credit union on campus and to continue with ongoing projects, such as the scholarship board and holding down tuition.

Prescription drug dilemma

Bret L. Stanley
Staff Writer

Editor's note: This is the first article in an seven-part series on drugs and drug abuse in today's society.

In today's fast paced, stress filled, anxiety ridden society, prescription drugs are a vital, yet misunderstood part.

Drugs are prescribed for anything from heart disease to headaches, but the abuse of these drugs is one of the biggest problems in society today.

Every time we go out and get a new calendar for the next year, more people are put in the coffin from prescription drugs, and more often than not, those drugs were legally prescribed.

According to a report to Congress by the General Accounting Office (GOA) in Oct. 1982, "The abuse of prescription drugs, most of which are obtained at the retail level, result in more injuries and deaths than all illegal drugs combined."

Drug abuse does not lead everyone to the cold coroner's slab or the emergency room, but drug treatment and detoxification centers are being introduced to a new type of client: The common

Library violating law

Tammy Lasky
Staff Writer

Many libraries, including UMD's, are breaking the law each day, and it appears that either they don't know it, or they close their eyes to it.

According to the library data law, section 13.40, it is illegal for any statewide system to link the patron's name with any material borrowed from a library.

UMD's library is in direct violation with the privacy law. When material is checked out, the student's name, identification number and, most surprisingly, social security number is printed on the card of the book. When returned, the material with the card attached, is placed back on the shelf.

Don Pearce, director of the UMD Library, admitted that the library is violating the privacy law. He said he feels that many other libraries are also breaking the law.

"It's a sticky problem, and you have us over a barrel," Pearce said.

Currently, there is nothing being done to remedy the problem at the UMD Library.

In other states, however, the FBI has begun a crack-down on libraries who violate the law.

The problem, Pearce said, is that the library has only 35 full-time employees and 80 part-time students.

Pearce said that the library doesn't have enough time or enough money from the University to initiate a system of checking out material that complies with the law.

The problem with leaving the patron's name in the book is that certain groups, such as religious sects, may come in and go through the books to get students' names for their mailing lists, Pearce said.

UMD currently has a proposal with the Legislature to get funding for a library automation system which would help to curb this problem.

The system would scan a bar code on the student's ID card. This way, no name could be associated with any material checked out.

The Twin Cities campus is in the process of converting to the automation bar code sysmiddle-class American with a pill problem.

The majority of these drugs are prescriptions from dentists or doctors, and the patients get addicted through no direct intent. They are reluctant to believe that the drugs they are using are addicting or that they are capable of becoming addicting.

According to the GOA report, drug abuse is defined as "non-medical use" of a substance for "psychic effect," dependency or suicide.

Although many people do become dependent on drugs because of abuse or misuse, there is the small percentage of people who get "hooked" because of a hereditary problem and not through abuse.

Anyone can become dependent on a psychoactive drug after taking large doses over a long period of time, but persons whose parents had a history of substance abuse have 35 times greater the chance of becoming dependent on a drug, and that is if only one parent had a problem. If both parents had a problem, the risk would be 400 times greater than the average person. This addiction is termed "psychobiological predisposition."

The people who can become addicted to drugs at normally prescribed levels are part of the 10 percent of the population that is affected in that way.

Unlike the American attitude toward recreation drugs (marijuana, cocaine, alcohol, etc.), which is negative for the most part, people have no qualms about taking prescribed drugs.

Drugs are the pulse behind modern medicine today. They treat everything from pain to mental anguish, and never before have medical personnel been able to treat such a wide variety of problems with stunningly efficient results.

As far as pain is concerned, there is a new drug called Fentanyl (sold on the street as China White) which is almost 100 times more effective than morphine. For depression and anxiety, there are completely new generations of drugs to ease suffering.

With so much anxiety and depression in today's world, people gladly take anything that will ease the tension.

According to GOA reports, there are over 20,000 psychoactive drugs that have the potential for abuse falling under government control. More than 20 billion doses are legally prescribed each year. These figures do not include the estimated several million doses that are illegally made and distributed each year which shows that the real problem exists not with the drug pusher, but with the common people that choose to abuse.

Drugs are usually put in groupings according to their effect or primary action on the central nervous system. The drugs mentioned below will be described in detail in future articles.

Stimulants: These are just like the name says, they get you going (cocaine, amphetamine, caffeine, nicotine).

Sedative-Hypnotics: They put you to sleep or slow you down. This class includes barbiturates (tuinal, seconal, phenobarbital) and benzodiazepines (valium, etc.).

Narcotic analgesics: These include the opium derived products (percocet, demerol, codeine). This type of drug relieves pain as well as induces sleep although they are different from the sedative-hypnotic class.

Antipsychotics: These deal with behavioral problems and help control the symptoms of major mental illness (haldol, thiorazine, mellaril).

Antidepressants: They do just that, relieve the symptoms of depression (adapin, elavil, tofranil).

The psychoactive drugs listed above seem to cause more reactions than other prescribed drugs. That is because the same substances are present in the activity of the central nervous system.

This system controls, or has an effect on, most of the body's other systems along with regulating how we feel, what we know and how we respond.

The amount of influence a drug has over the body functions and systems determines how dangerous it can be. For example, barbiturates put the patient to sleep, but also influence the breathing. Amphetamines speed up all of the body's systems as well as suppressing the appetite and keeping the patient awake.

With all of the advances in science and modern medicine, scientists in the near future will be able to design drugs that will be targeted directly to the problem without causing the adverse side effects. In addition, the drugs might be able to do their job without getting the patient high.

UMD is seeking $400,000 from the state to begin its automation system.

The system, if funded, will take three to four years to implement in the library.

We probably should start something, but we must have money and staff increases to begin to comply with the privacy law, Pearce said.

Not so serious, please

"Why don't you learn to laugh?
Look in the mirror and Don't take yourself so seriously."

-Ray Davies (Misery)

As you read the articles and ads appearing in the front section of today's STATESMAN (retitled the "RATESMAN" for this special issue), it will be obviously clear that we have taken a break from seriousness. While some of the parody may be found to be sophomoric or lacking in humor, we have made somewhat of an attempt to stay within the realm of good taste. In the hopes of bringing some laughter to the UMD community, we probably have offended those that have been the brunt of jokes or whose stomachs don't appreciate certain styles of humor. To those we do not necessarily apologize, but rather, hope they don't take themselves too seriously.

One of the first things a STATESMAN reporter or staff member learns is that the rest of the members of the UMD community rarely take you seriously. We've all grown accustomed to the fact that the majority of our readers pick up the paper for pizza coupons, in the hope of seeing their names mentioned in the "Personals" section or to see if maybe, just maybe, one of the comics will be funny that week. Knowing this helps us keep level heads and relieves some of the pressure of being a full-time student and keeping up with the demands and deadlines of the publication.

While the majority of the UMD community does not lead what would be considered hectic lives, the everyday anxieties we all go through can build and build if not vented in some way. A good way to relieve pressure is to simply look at yourself and take the time to not take yourself seriously. Some of the things we do are unwittingly funny and can even be hilarious in the eyes of others.

Our society pays entertainers and comedians a great deal of money to make us laugh. The majority of movies and television shows are comedies, and what is the section most of us turn to in our favorite newspaper first? The comics (or funnies), of course. We are more interested in what The Bloom County gang is up to or what Gary Larson feels falls on the Far Side than in what Ronald Reagan says or what is happening in the stock market. Sure, we're all concerned about what our troops are doing in Honduras, but first we have to check on what Calvin and Hobbs are up to.

We at the STATESMAN have put a lot of time and effort into the RATESMAN, and all those who worked on it did so on a volunteer basis; no extra pay was gained. We hope you enjoy it and take no offense if some of the humor hits close to home. Enjoy and, please, try not to take yourself so seriously.

Malosky a discredit

Editor:

"You got beat by a girl. I can't believe you have the balls to come in here and complain about your grade."

This was the response, verbatim, which I received from our esteemed head football coach after expressing my dissatisfaction over a final grade in a physical education class. I was further vexed, though hardly surprised, by Mr. Malosky's inability to produce my final exam -- of course they had been corrected, they just were not available for student review. I expressed my opinion at this point by explaining I felt Mr. Malosky's grading procedure was a bit arbitrary, abstract and possibly arranged, to which Mr. Malosky offered this solution: "I'll tell you what, we'll go down to the court right now, and if you beat me, I'll give you an A, but if I beat you, I change your grade to a C."

Oh, but only if it were only his inequitable and unexcusable grading criteria; however, it is really a matter of Mr. Malosky's complete and brazen disregard for everything not directly connected with his football program. Our badminton class offers a splendid case in point. Mr. Malosky never got around to organizing or instructing the class: the rules were never fully explained, the net was never at the official standard of five-foot one-inch, the class tournament was an exercise in chaos and was never completed, and best of all, we spent the entire quarter playing on mostly imaginary courts. It seems Mr. Malosky could not find the time in his busy schedule to measure and tape more than one complete court and a portion of a second. While eight lucky individuals (on our one-and-two-thirds courts) were conducting their 'tournament' doubles matches, the other 26 students played on non-existent courts.

I'm on the coaching staff at Superior Senior High School, and I took the liberty of comparing their two-week program with Mr. Malosky's ten-week university program. Superior has 10 official courts intersected by an official height net on which 40 students play the game of badminton. I asked the physical education instructor how long it took to set up such a facility, and he replied, "between one and two hours" -- clearly out of the question for coach Malosky.

The complete ineptitude demonstrated by Mr. Malosky in this class was highly reminiscent of his abilities and attitudes as an instructor of "Psychological Aspects of Coaching," a class which I had the pleasure of taking Winter Quarter 1986. Unfortunately, coach Malosky was unable to attend the first four weeks of class since he was 'recruiting in Hawaii.' When he returned, he read to the class from our text. It was nice and soporific, like the bedtime stories I remembered hearing as a child. Lo and behold if on the night of our final, he didn't announce it to be an open book exam which, by the way, didn't stop a number of large male students from exchanging answers in the back of the room while our oblivious instructor read an absorbing issue of Sports Illustrated.

As a head football coach, I'm not sure the win/loss column is clearly in his favor; however, if my memory serves me correctly, Mr. Malosky has difficulty counting to four. As an instructor, it is my opinion that Mr. Malosky sullies the physical education department and stands as a discredit to UMD.

Dance performance held this weekend

Tracy Claseman
Staff Writer

"Dance is able to express things that words cannot," said Ann Bergeron as she talked about the upcoming Choreographer's Evening at UMD.

About 30 dancers will be involved in 13 dances which will vary from modern dance to jazz to tap to ballet.

The dances have been choreographed by both faculty members and students, said Bergeron, who is in charge of the Choreographer's Evening.

One of the students who has done some of the choreographing for the performance is Wendy Sawvel, a senior with a minor in dance.

Sawvel has designed three dances for the show, including a post-modern piece in which she is a solo dancer. Sawvel explains post-modern dance as a style that became popular in the 1970's and 80's which involves non-dance movements like walking or sitting on a chair.

"It's not necessarily timed to music. Things happen because of chance. It's a free form style."

Another student who has choreographed a dance for the show is Melinda Lerfald, who has arranged a jazz dance that is set in the streets of New York. The dance consists of five dancers, four who are members of a "gang." The dance revolves around the relationship of the non-gang member to the others.

Lerfald said she found choreographing much harder than dancing.

"You have to think of 200 different ways (to explain the dance) in your head, and you have to hope they (the dancers) can do one of them."

In choreographing her piece, Lerfald said she chose the dancers before she really worked out the movements of the dance.

"You have to know what you have to work with and see whether they (the dancers) can capture the mood."

Sawvel took a different angle in choreographing one of her pieces, "Darkness," a modern ballet dance. In that dance, she developed the story line first and then added the music and the dancers.

Sawvel said she feels it is important to work in several different ways because you "need other creative avenues, or it gets frustrating."

All three women said they consider dance a means of expression and communication.

"There are responses we have to movement that are universal," Bergeron said. "I think dance is a natural part of living."

"You can express yourself in many different styles," said Sawvel who added that dance, especially choreography, is a challenge, but "very rewarding. You have your idea and start sculpting. They (the dancers) will connect and make it better than you ever imagined."

Sawvel admits that expressing yourself with dance can be scary.

"You risk bringing out your own internal expressiveness, but it's worth it because the audience responds."

"Certain people won't like it (the dance)," Sawvel realizes, "but you accept that. I'm proud to sit in the audience -- you can feel the energy of the dancers. It's very exciting."

A Choreographer's Evening is not the same as a dance recital, Bergeron said. A Choreographer's Evening has "been set up to serve as a showcase of choreography that's still in its working stages."

However, it is the only type of dance performance done at UMD. The only other dance performance available in Duluth is the Duluth Ballet, Bergeron said.

Sawvel calls the Choreographer's Evening, "A great experience for me and the dancers, and a great opportunity for people in the community to see dance. It's good all around."

Performances of the Choreographer's Evening are this Thursday, Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. in the Dudley Experimental Theater. Tickets are $2 for general admission and $1 for UMD students and can be bought at the door.

Hypnotist will trance students

Sandra Germain
Staff Writer

Just when you thought the only thing that could put you into a deep sleep was a hundred pages of text, Kirby Program Board is bringing hypnotist John-Ivan Palmer to the Kirby Ballroom on Thursday, April 6.

Billed as "The world's fastest hypnotist," Palmer can place subjects into a deep hypnosis in less time than it takes to read a title page.

Palmer, a Minneapolis

stage hypnotist, travels the United States entertaining college students on numerous campuses with his hilarious stage show.

Palmer uses his voice and non-verbal suggestions to bring volunteers into a deep, hypnotic withdrawal. That's when the fun begins.

The once mild-mannered guy sitting next to you is now the world's greatest disco king. Your roommate who couldn't relate to Alf is now spouting perfect Martian, and when it's over, they won't remember a thing.

Don't worry though, Palmer claims that hypnosis is as safe as a daydream since it leaves the mind happy and relaxed.

The Spring Affair returns to UMD

Elizabeth Stodola
Staff Writer

Once again, Kirby Program Board is sponsoring a spring semi-formal dance, giving students an opportunity to dress up and spend a fun-filled evening dancing and socializing.

The Spring Affair, set for April 9 at Greysolon Plaza, will be very similar to last year's dance, and it is expected to be equally successful, according to Jennifer Henke, assistant coordinator of KPB.

The dance will feature the Minneapolis band "Star" who will play a variety of music including more slow songs than last year's band, by request of KPB coordinators.

In addition to a live band, refreshments, such as punch and several kinds of hors d'oeuvres, will be served. A cash bar will be available with identification.

Coordinators are also hoping to have a professional photographer on-hand for those who wish to have their pictures taken, an option that was not available at last year's event.

Henke believes the St. Valentine's Ball, sponsored by the Communication Club earlier this year, will have a positive effect on the turnout of the Spring Affair since many students who attended the ball now know how much fun this kind of dance can be. Also, tickets are less expensive, which KPB is hoping will draw a larger number of students.

Tickets for the dance cost $8.50 for couples and $5 for singles and are available at the Kirby Student Center Ticket Office right now.

Get yours soon because the Spring Affair is an event you won't want to miss!

Guitarist to play Kirby

Kris Vickerman
Staff Writer

James Hersch, a guitarist from Osseo, Minn., will perform in the Bullpup at noon on Tuesday, April 5. The concert is free and sponsored by the Kirby Program Board.

Hersch, born in 1956, attended Hamline University in St. Paul after graduating from high school. At Hamline he earned a Bachelor of Arts degree in Classical Guitar Performance. Hersch also studied under Russell Harris, the Ernst Krenek protege.

In 1979, Hersch participated in the ASCAP (American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers) Songwriter's Workshop West in Los Angeles, and then he began touring club and college circuits as a solo performer, showcasing his original material. Hersch's rank as one of the most popular coffeehouse entertainers in the college market was reflected in his nomination for 'Coffeehouse Entertainer of the Year' for 1987.

Presently Hersch has released two recordings and both offer original music. Not only has his music received airplay on nationwide college radio stations, but also on National Public Radio.

Hersch does several other things besides touring, such as scoring music for video, writing commercials and producing other artists. Several popular musical acts perform his music throughout the United States, and his material can be heard on radio and cable television.

Congratulations are in order for Lisa Merideth and Diana Pavek who designed Kirby Program Board's calendar Winter Graffiti '88. The calendar took first place in the non-poster category of the National Association of Campus Activities National Convention in Washington, D.C. in February.

Although Merideth, KPB's publicity director, and Pavek, KPB's graphic artist, did most of the technical work on the calendar, everyone at KPB contributed to the project by writing the graffiti.

Composer, conductor and educator Gunther Schuller will lecture in Somers Lounge at the College of St. Scholastica on Wednesday, April 6 at 8 p.m. The lecture is free and open to the public. For more information, call 723-6075.

A chamber music flute recital will be performed on March 31 at 8 p.m. in the Tweed Museum of Art. The program is part of the Faculty Artist Series.

Performing will be Marion Valasek, flute; Patricia Laliberte, piano; Benjamin Smith, cello; David Schmalenberger, percussion; Janelle Lemire, harp; Karen Keenan, flute; David Kassler, tuba; and Erik Swenson, percussion.

The recital is $1 for senior citizens, $2 for adults and free for students.

Need Money?

A substantial amount of Perkins Loan money has been made available to the Office of Student Financial Aid for UMD students. This loan money is available to eligible students for the remainder of the academic year.

If you have received financial aid for this school year, and your financial need has not been met, contact the Counselor of the Day, 139 DAdB, to see if you would be eligible.

Sexual Assault

Sexual Assault Trauma has long term effects. It can affect relationships, work, school and self-esteem many years later. The recovery process is important. If at any time you have been a victim of any type of sexual assault, a survivors support group will be starting early April. This is not the same as being in therapy group, but is designed to give survivors of sexual assault trauma support and help them take control of their lives. For more information, call the Program Aid to Victims of Sexual Assault 726-4751.

Race to stay at UMD

Mike Hudyma
Sports Editor

At a press conference Wednesday, head basketball coach Dale Race dispelled any speculation that he would be leaving UMD for the vacant

MEN'S BASKETBALL

University of North Dakota head basketball coaching position by saying that he expects to be coaching at UMD until the end of his career.

Speculation of Race leaving was fueled by a disclosure this week that he had sent an application to UND and was considered one of the top candidates for the job.

Race said he felt the issue had been blown out of proportion because he was never even interested in the job.

"North Dakota contacted me and asked me to apply for their job. I wasn't interested in doing that, but they were persistent, and out of common courtesy I told them that I would talk to Gino Gasparini (UND athletic director)."

Race said Gasparini asked him to send a resume and had hinted in phone conversations that he wouldn't take "no" for an answer.

Even so, Race said he never filled out a formal application for the job and never considered himself as a candidate.

"I am staying at Minnesota-Duluth. It has been that way all along, and I really do not know how all this speculation came about because they contacted me."

Race also stated he was completely happy here at UMD by saying, "I honestly feel that I have every bit as good a job here at UMD as I would at the University in Grand Forks, N.D. I just feel that UMD is the place for me.

If I was to leave here, it would take an awfully strong and terrific offer for me to move."

The position at North Dakota offered a salary in the range of $35,000 to $40,000.

Race, who turns 41 today, has been head coach at UMD since 1984 and is under a three-year self-perpetuating contract with the University.

In his four years of coaching at UMD, Race has compiled a 95-29 record (.766), and in his eight years of coaching, he has a 165-86 record (.657).

In each of the four years at UMD, Race has guided the Bulldogs to an NAIA District 13 championship and to the NAIA national tournament in Kansas City. The Bulldogs have captured the Northern Intercollegiate Conference Championship the last three years, and they tied for second in the NIC in 1984-85, Race's first season at UMD.

While enjoying the warmth of the island of Hawaii, the

SOFTBALL

UMD softball team is also enjoying victory.

The team opened play by winning a double-header over Chaminade on Saturday.

Kelli Ritzer, now in a softball uniform only a week after the basketball season ended, pitched a 27-0 shutout in the first game behind four hits each by Ann Patet and Kelly

Heid.

Kathy Jedrzejek had three hits in the second game as Renee Fluegge pitched a 33-6 victory.

UMD split a double-header with Hawaii Pacific on Sunday. The Bulldogs won the first game 3-2 with a single by Devie Erickson in the seventh inning that broke the 2-2 tie. Fluegge pitched seven innings and gave up seven hits while striking out two batters.

The Bulldogs then took their first loss on the island 6-2 behind the pitching of Sheri Schmidt. Schmidt,

The UMD women's softball team has been in Hawaii during the week and overall have a record of 7-3. The Bulldogs will enter conference play on April 8, last year the 'Dogs finished with a perfect record of 12-0 in the conference and were the league champions.

Blue skies ahead for track & field

Bret L. Stanley
Sports Writer

The grayish-green hue of the UMD fieldhouse gives way to the bright blue sky as the

TRACK & FIELD

UMD men's and women's track teams make the annual transition from the indoor to the outdoor season.

Both teams get a week's time in between the two seasons to change over before trekking to Stevens Point, Wis. on Saturday, April 9 for the University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point Invitational.

Most of the Wisconsin schools should be competing in the meet, including UW-Green Bay and UW-Milwaukee.

A few different events come with the outdoor season, including the 3000 meter stee-plechase, the 10,000 meter run, the 400 meter hurdles, the discus and javelin throws.

"We don't seem to have any volunteers for javelin catchers this season though," head coach Eleanor Rynda said.

According to Rynda, the runners improve with the outdoor season. "As a rule, most runners do better outdoors, but making the transition from a small track to a big track takes a lot of concentration and thought.

"The wind can also have a negative effect on runners," Rynda said. "What it takes out of a person to run into the wind is not comparable to what you get in return. Some people think that the wind at your back will make up for the other, but it doesn't."

Rynda expects the teams to do well, especially in the relays, but says the teams are

The women's tennis team walked away winners from last weekend's matches by taking Concordia to the cleaners, 9-0.

WOMEN'S TENNIS

while holding off Moorhead 5-4. The Bulldogs now own a 4-1 record which is good considering all five matches were away.

"Concordia was a better match than the score indicates," coach Don Haynes noted. "Several of the matches went three sets. We just came out on top in every position."

Moorhead, however, was a different matter though.

"We were tied at three a piece with the top three singles left. Dawn Hable, No.1, lost a great match. Her opponent was probably the best singles player we've seen this year," Haynes said.

"Steph Carlson won at second singles, and Deb Nielsen took third to give us the match. Nielsen moved up from the fourth position to replace Val Aney who twisted an ankle in her doubles match," Haynes explained.

UMD will host Winona State in their first home match Friday at 3 p.m. The 'Dogs hope to make the most of the home court advantage.

"Take me out to the ball game, take me out to the crowd." Major league baseball officially opens its season April 4, and ball games all over the United States will be jammed.

The Twins open their season in a three-game set against the Yankees in New York on April 5, 6 and 7 before coming home to the already sold out Metrodome for three games against the Toronto Blue Jays on April 8, 9 and 10.

The Twins organization has sold over a million reserved tickets, and it is projected that home attendance could approach the three million mark should the Twins produce a season close to last year's. Last year the Twins drew 2,081,000 fans to the Metrodome.

Quote of Note: Twins third base coach Rick Renick as quoted in Sporting News about the biggest difference between now and the days he played: "I got more meal money the first month we were here (spring training in Orlando, Fla.) than I made my whole first season."

Hockey Talk: April 13 is the official signing date for hockey recruits, but the UMD hockey team has verbal commitments from two Minnesota standouts: Doug Torrel, a 6-foot 2-inch 190-pound forward from Hibbing, Minn., who scored 16 goals and added 21 in his senior season, and Chad Erickson, a 5-foot 10-inch 170-pound goaltender from Warroad, Minn., who led the state in goals against average and with eight shutouts.

Torrel was the top Minnesota prospect selected in the NHL entry draft, being selected 66th overall by the Vancouver Canucks, while being named an associated press All-State team selection.

Erickson, a Mr. Minnesota Hockey finalist as well as an All-State first team selection as a senior, led Warroad to fourth and third place finishes in the state high school tournament the last two years.

Sertich also has verbal commitments from Canadians Wayne Sager, a wing from Dauphin, Manitoba in the junior hockey league, and Kevin Kaiser, a wing from the Winnipeg Blues in the junior hockey league.

The Bulldogs are highly interested in Duluth East's Sean Hill, a defenseman All-State selection. Hill's father, Bob, played hockey for UMD and was the first Bulldog ever to gain All-American honors in 1965.

Hill has supposedly narrowed his choices to UMD and the University of Wisconsin.

Naming coaches: It is expected that UMD will name a new volleyball coach sometime next week. The position was vacated when Micky Tierney resigned for personal reasons last January.

Sweeping from 9B

Jedrzejek and Brenda Brozik each had two hits in the loss.

Last Tuesday UMD split another double-header against Hawaii Loa. The Bulldogs won the first game 1-0 behind a two-hit shutout by Ritzer.

Erickson singled home pinch runner Brozik in the third inning for UMD's lone run.

Dana Baldwin threw a six-hitter in the second game as Fluegge gave up one run to get the 3-2 loss.

Brozik and Elizabeth Bettes both had run-scoring hits in a 3-0 UMD rally.

Overall, UMD now stands 7-3 on the season with two more games in Hawaii before returning to Duluth.

The 1987 conference champion Bulldogs will enter conference play April 8 against Winona State, and their first home game is April 13 against Bemidji State. With all but two returning letter-winners missing from the team, UMD is looking to finish on top of the conference again this year.

Ahead from 9B

still in their developmental stages.

Last Saturday, March 26, the UMD women closed out the indoor season as they hosted the April Fool's Invitational in the UMD fieldhouse.

The Bulldog's guests included St. Cloud State, Luther College, Bemidji State University, Winona State, University of Wisconsin-Superior, Northwestern College and Vermilion Community College.

The women placed second only to St. Cloud, but did the best they could with the number of people that were able to run, according to Rynda.

UMD took the top two honors in the 55 meter dash placing Amee Koebnick first and Jill Cox, on her shoestrings, in second.

The two runners also helped out in the 4x176 yard relay along with Joan Weinzierl and Holly Redfern to gain second.

"Joan (Weinzierl) did a great job for us. She's been working really hard and it shows right there," Rynda said.

Weinzierl placed second in the long jump and also took the gold in the 200 hurdles, which is not usually an indoor event.

"The 200 is kind of a preparation for the 400 hurdles," Rynda said. "The 400 is more for speed, strength and endurance than just a straight sprint."

Co-captain Lynn Stottler

"We don't seem to have any volunteers for javlin catchers this season."

-Coach Eleanor

was also back in the running last weekend as she placed first in the 1500 meter run. Stottler was sidelined earlier this season and is still bothered to some extent with a leg injury.

"It's nice to have Lynn Stottler back. She's competing to the limits of her abilities," Rynda commented.

On the vertical side, UMD's Jodi Swenson cleared 5 feet 4 inches for top high jump honors, and in the mile relay the UMD team of Redfern, Cox, Weinzierl and Dianna Olson took second.

The medley relay, another unusual event, consisting of two 88 yard runs, one 176 yard lap and a 440 yard finish, gave the Bulldog women yet another first behind the efforts of Barb Schmidt, Koebnick, Olson and Redfern.

Diamond 'Dogs to host Huskies

Georgia is no longer on their minds.

The UMD Bulldog baseball team returns home from their week-long excursion in the peach state with a 4-6 record to bring into the 'Dogs home state opener against non-conference rival Carleton College.

Scott Thomlinson makes a vicious cut in the batting cage as catcher Pete Luhman looks on.

The first pitch in the twin-bill will be thrown out at 12 p.m. on Saturday, April 2 in Northfield, Minn.

The Carleton Knights sport a 0-6 record so far this season.

After Saturday's game, the Bulldog batmen return to Duluth to host St. Cloud State University in a double-header on Tuesday, April 5.

The 1 p.m. start for Tuesday's game will feature the opening of the new Bulldog Park on the UMD campus.

Last week in the latter half of their southern expedition, UMD downed LaGrange College 12-8 on Wednesday, March 23.

Bulldog center fielder Mike Petrich put two out of the park and drove in three RBI's to lead the team.

Dennis Karp had three hits, and Drew Lloyd added two hits and an RBI for UMD.

Sophomore Brian Zadro got the win by working five and two-thirds innings and allowing all eight runs -- only two of which were earned. Larry Pajari and Dan Renner also pitched in relief.

The following day, the 'Dogs visited Toccoa Falls College and hammered the team 18-3 in seven innings.

Winning pitcher Tony Trachsel and Petrich, who came in as a reliever, combined for 13 strike-outs.

UMD had 17 hits in the game and got two each from Renner, Pete Luhman, Troy

Brekken, Scott Tomlinson and Dennis Angelotti.

On Saturday, March 26 the 'Dogs dropped a double-header to Shorter College 11-0 and 8-6 on their final day in Georgia.

Zandro was the starting hurler in the first game, and John Eids tossed four innings in the nightcap, giving up six runs on five hits. Pajari came on the mound in relief and gave up a hit and two runs in two innings.

The results of the 10-game trip proved that the Bulldog bats were hot. UMD hit .310, taking team totals, and powered out a .548 slugging percentage.

Zadro, who was perfect as a freshman last year, suffered his first defeats since he went 1-2 in three appearances, but he still boasts a 2.05 ERA.

Head coach Scott Hanna showed his team's depth by making use of 12 different hurlers during the 10-game stint. The 'Dogs used only one more than that pitching total during the entire season last year.

The starting of a double-play is crucial, two Bulldogs practice to meet perfection.

Dan Renner practices his pitch in the fieldhouse.

Train to be a triathlete

Rod Raymond
Staff Writer

Do you have running shoes?

Do you have a bicycle?

Do you have a swimsuit and goggles?

If you answered yes to these three questions, then the May 7th Rec Sports Spring Triathlon is for you. This event will consist of a four mile run, 12 mile bike ride and a 15 lap (30 lengths) swim in the pool. But before you take on such a feat, it is essential that you properly prepare yourself.

When training for the triathlon, there are 10 simple principles to follow in order to maximize fitness potential.

1) Follow a hard/easy training regime. One day hard, the next day easy.

2) On hard days, do two events (perhaps bike and run), allowing two hours rest between events. For example, bike hard in the morning and run at a slow to medium pace in the evening.

3) On easy days, concentrate on form. Make sure to keep the heart rate down. This will allow you to recuperate from the previous hard work day. For example, swim a mile in the pool slow and easy.

4) At least once a week do a bike to run workout. This is to introduce your muscles to the fatigued feeling they'll get when making the transition during a race. For example, bike 20 miles, then immediately after biking put on running shoes and run 3-4 miles.

5) Practice transitions. Many triathlons are won or lost by only a few seconds. Therefore, it's essential that you practice changing from your bike equipment to your running shoes.

6) Make sure equipment is in good working order. Nothing is more frustrating than having a shift lever break due to a loose nut or having a wobbling wheel because you didn't true it up. Furthermore, do not go out and buy the most expensive gear, but slowly update as you become more involved.

7) Try to keep fat off. Fat, in no way, aids performance, but simply goes along for the ride. By doing this, one must increase calorie expenditure and either maintain or lower caloric intake.

8) Take care of minor injuries immediately before they become major. With injuries, you will never be able to train at full potential.

9) Find someone skilled and experienced to help you with swimming, biking and running technique. If no one is available, there is plenty of literature available. One would be surprised to see how much a few pointers will help.

10) Relax and enjoy the sport. You are becoming involved in the fastest growing sport in America. If you are not enjoying it, it may be that the triathlon is not for you.

A recommended training schedule for the average healthy athlete entering the sport of triathlons.

Apostle Islands play host to seakayakers

News Service

The Apostle Islands Seakayaking Symposium announced its first annual four-day event to be staged in Bayfield, Wis. June 9-12.

The symposium will feature five major manufacturers of kayaks, and there will be over 60 kayaks on hand to try out. During the four days, participants will be offered a menu of 16 workshops to choose from. Six of these will be on water technique workshops, four will be paddle tours through the Apostle Islands and the remaining six will be classroom workshops in nature, covering a wide variety of topics.

Nationally renowned designers and paddlers will be featured along with regional and local authorities to head the symposium workshops. A strong emphasis will be placed on regional natural history and culture in many of the programs which will expose participants to many of the unique recreational, historical and environmental opportunities in the National Lake Shore region.

The Apostle Islands Seakayaking Symposium is being sponsored through the cooperative efforts of Northland College, Trek and Trail in Bayfield, the Sigurd Olson Institute, Mid West Mountaineering, Rudabega and the Bayfield Chamber of Commerce.

This major event is being held in one of the most premier seakayaking environments available. A combination of geology, historical sights, natural beauty and challenging waters make the Apostle Islands a hot bed of interest to anyone looking for a great place to explore.

St. Cloud hosts rec tourney

The UMD men's intramural basketball team, We're Ugly But We're Good, lost in the championship game to Mankato State University at the annual extramural tournament at St. Cloud State University. The tournament features intramural championship teams from eight schools around Minnesota and attracted a crowd of approximately 35-40,000.

Ugly But Good had to get by Fergus Falls in the semifinals and Bemidji State in the quarterfinals.

In the game against Bemidji State, Scott Hampton hit a three-pointer at the buzzer to win, sending Ugly But Good into the medal rounds.
